From Paul Luecke, director, Challenger Program:

There are only a few days left to apply for this summer’s Young Adult Challenger Program. This is an all-new program venue in two scenic locations in Wyoming. The itinerary includes one day of class time, two days of rock climbing and exploring at Vedauwoo (pronounced vee-da-wo’), and five nights in cabins near the Snowy Range, with day trips exploring inspiring mountain destinations and lakes. With a focus on leadership and service development, valuable life skills will be taught, including emergency preparedness, topo map reading and navigation, planning and leading personal excursions in the future, team-building dynamics, mountain fishing, basic rock-climbing skills and more. On top of this, you will likely return home more fit and lean!

The program calls for participants to arrive on Sunday, June 29, and return home on Monday, July 7. Applications are open to young adults up through their 30s in age, married or single, with a reasonable level of health and fitness. Please visit http://camps.cogwa.org/camps/challenger-program-snowy-range-wy/ for complete details and the application form. Application deadline is the end of April, and we hope to see your application soon!
