Cancelling Services in Kansas City:

From Greg Sargent:

The forecast for Kansas City doesn't look good. We have a lot of rain coming in and temperatures are dropping into the ice zone. Rather than waiting until early morning to make a decision, I believe the wisest choice to keep everyone from harm's way is to cancel tonight. I'm always hesitant to do so but when it comes to snow and blizzards, the only thing Montana people do with big snow storms is rejoice so they can make snow men, pour maple syrup over fresh snow as a faux ice cream cone and jump off the 2nd floor into high snow banks. Danger is not a thought but when growing up in a 1 X 1 mile square town, everyone walked. And we didn't have much ice on the roads.

Besides the cogwa.tv <http://cogwa.tv/> (password is fot) sermons that are available, I would recommend also a sermon given by Mr. David Johnson on the subject of anger

Please call anyone that you know who doesn't check their emails.

Keep safe and warm!
